

1 Overview

Any complex electronic system will almost always require a control unit to operate it. This can take many forms, from off-the-shelf solutions to bespoke circuits. There are two aspects of control that must be designed for; the user interface to control the skateboard, battery management, and motor/drive train control.

2 User Interface

text goes here

3 Battery Management

text goes here

4 Motor Control

text goes here